

Career Talk

CAROLINA BONMASSAR

Project Coordinator for the Female Scientists Network (FSN) &
for the FDIBA Project, OVGU Magdeburg

We would like to invite you to the career talk “Beyond the Lab: Transferable Skills and Global Career Transitions. Navigating new beginnings after the PhD through international experience and adaptive skills”!

In the Career Talk, Carolina Bonmassar will discuss her personal career path--from her studies in psychology and neuroscience in Italy, through her doctoral research at the LIN, to her current work in science and project management at OVGU.

Another focus of the talk is the so-called transferable skills gained from her PhD and her travels: Which skills from the PhD are valuable not only within academia but also beyond?

Why was that year-long break so beneficial, and why was it necessary after completing her PhD? What skills help one navigate new professional contexts, build networks, and "make a good impression"?
