

Understanding the Learning Brain - A symposium to honor LIN founding director Henning Scheich

On Tuesday, November 10, 2026, the Leibniz Institute for Neurobiology Magdeburg will host a scientific symposium in honor of its founding director Henning Scheich (<https://www.lin-magdeburg.org/institute/understanding-the-learning-brain>).

The aim of this symposium is to acknowledge Henning Scheich's scientific achievements and his contributions to science policy, and to demonstrate how his visions continue to shape the current and future landscape of neuroscience. Accordingly, long-standing colleagues of Henning Scheich and members of the next generation of neuroscientists will present their perspectives on the learning brain.

The registration is free of charge – please register via the website at your earliest convenience because the number of seats is limited.
